

YOU'RE INVITED!

Susquehanna Events on Campus

As one of the largest proprietary trading firms in the world, we trade our own capital at our own risk. We are experts in trading essentially all listed financial products and asset classes, with a focus on derivatives, and handle millions of transactions on exchanges around the world every day. While our presence in the market is broad, our trading desks are highly specialized, allowing for a deep understanding of the unique drivers of each product. Our expertise in probabilistic thinking and game theory combined with our focus on signal detection and low-latency performance have made Susquehanna one of the leading global market makers. By providing liquidity and ensuring competitive prices for buyers and sellers, Susquehanna plays a critical role in the financial markets.

We will be on campus on Wednesday, September 25. Stop by one of our events (or all!) to talk to a Quantitative Researcher or member of the recruiting team.

More challenging than your typical sudoku, and more fun than your typical math problem set.

This is a team-based event with 3-4 participants per team. Sign up as a full team, or sign up as 1-2 participants and we will assign you to a team. We will be catering sandwiches from Potbelly for dinner. Spots are first come, first served. This event is restricted to PhD students and Postdocs.
